19	Sridhar	P	Q- He put me in a condition- where I'm working as a data analyst in public transport, and recently the usage of public transport like bus, train has dropped significantly, and the data is very less provided to us, geolocation data of cars is given to us by which we can find where is traffic on roads, also I'm free to do survey and collect data on my own from where I want - and my task was to find the reasons of such and give recommendation to the government. (when I answered he asked me cross question also that - what external factors do I think would be hindering the usage of public transport.	Listen the question very carefully and reparafraze the question for confirmation of your understanding, then think for 15-20seconds then answer. (I also felt better - as soon as he asked me the cross question.)
20	Sridhar	DP	A company let's say Rapido, they want to add a new feature booking of bus tickets like booking of bus tickets and they want quick numbers to support adding this booking of bus ,but they don't have much data or have no data ,you have to convince them for data ,that you need data but also don't sound like obstacle to the project since this is a new startup which needs to expand otherwise it will not survive.
21	Abinaya	-	She's just asking to describe a complex problem to which you came up a solution with and what was the impact. And they're running late as well, so no intro nothing just think about a situation yourself and answer. (Repeated question)

23	Sridhar	DS	Our supermarket chain recently ran a 'Buy One Get One Free' promotion on several products. During the offer period, we observed a significant increase in footfall and the number of customers visiting the store. However, despite the higher number of customers, overall revenue fell compared to regular periods. This raised concerns about the effectiveness of the promotion in driving profitability.
